SECURITY AWARENESS TRAINING

Businesses are more susceptible to cyber threats and data breaches than ever before, and the most common cause is a lack of employee security training. Instead of trying to get past multiple security layers, cyber-criminals find it easier to manipulate unsuspecting employees into giving them access to an organization's network. Employees are easy targets because many businesses do not adequately educate their staff on the sophisticated social engineering tricks used by cyber-criminals. Implementing proper security awareness training can work with a layered security approach to keep your business and data protected.

IS THIS YOUR CURRENT SITUATION?

Since multiple, complex passwords are hard to remember, your employees create common passwords, write them down and reuse them for multiple accounts. You're unsure if your employees can detect if an emailed link is legitimate before clicking on it. You worry about employees accessing malicious websites that will infect your system with malware.
